

Picture 1: Mr Scott Wightman, the British High Commissioner engaging with a hands-on demonstration with (left to right) Mr Chris Chung, Head of Strategic Development and External Affairs (Asia) at Lloyd's Register, and Professor Hong Minghui, Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering.

Picture 2: Professor Hong Minghui (right) explaining the state-of-the-art technologies to Mr Scott Wightman, the British High Commissioner to Singapore.

Picture 3: Prince Andrew, the Duke of York, was introduced to the next-generation optical microscope; material “fingerprint” analyzer; and an eco-friendly laser coating by the team, while Mr Scott Wightman, the British High Commissioner, looks on. The team comprises of (left to right) Mr Chen Lianwei, Chief Scientist of Phaos Technology Pte. Ltd. and Mr Chris Chung, Head of Strategic Development and External Affairs (Asia) at Lloyd’s Register.

Picture 4: Science is GREAT is an event organized by the British High Commission with the focus on celebrating and showcasing the strong UK-Singapore partnership enabling great scientific innovations to be developed.